Sigma Logistic Solutions, based in Pretoria and Cape Town, recently exhibited for the first time at Africa Aerospace and Defence (AAD) 2018 held at the Waterkloof Air Force Base. Sigma is the largest supplier of technical documentation and support services in South Africa, and has been providing solutions to the military and commercial markets for more than 30 years. Some of Sigma's international clients include Rheinmettal Air Defence (RAD), Kärcher, Berkefeld, and Pilatus. Local clients include Bell Equipment, Milkor, Armscor, the SANDF, Denel, Paramount, and the Passenger Rail Agency of South Africa (PRASA).

This year's AAD show was the 20th exhibition and it once again showcased country pavilions and world-class companies and products. Sigma's marketing staff had the opportunity to interface with local and international exhibitors and to discuss the benefits of dealing with a leading South African company in the field of product and system support. Over the course of the three-day trade fair, marketers met staff at each of the country pavilions and discussed technical manuals, logistic support, and a variety of other services with a wide-range of companies.

In the digital age, the support of complex equipment has become even more important - stressing the need for top-quality support solutions in training, operation, repair, and spares support. Regardless of whether support manuals are paper-based or are digitally hyperlinked on mobile devices; cost-effective, efficient support solutions allow systems and equipment to operate at their best. According to Business Unit Manager, Piet van der Merwe, the show was a great success for Sigma and has opened many doors for further business opportunities locally and around the world.
